

DR. SHOCK BURIED WITH MILITARY AND ODD FELLOW HONORS

Second Ward Chapel Crowded
With Friends of Deceased.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Second ward chapel for Dr. William H. Shock whose sudden death we reported in last week's issue. No better proof could have been given of the esteem in which the deceased had been held than shown by the impressive services under auspices of the local Odd Fellows lodge, by the large attendance and the profuse floral offerings gathered around the casket.

M. C. Nelson, Past Grand of Richfield lodge No. 29, conducted the services and beautifully appropriate music was furnished by a selected mixed chorus consisting of Mrs. Jas. M. Peterson, Mrs. L. A. Poulson, Mrs. Vern Bloomquist, Mrs. Hattie Bean, Jonathan Lloyd, J. Kent Cobb and A. M. Maughan, with Mesdames Peterson, Poulson and Blomquist singing solo parts.

The opening prayer was delivered by Bishop W. A. Seegmiller, and the speakers were Dr. T. R. Gledhill, who had intimately known Dr. Shock for the past twenty-five years, and Rev. W. S. Young of the Presbyterian church. Dr. Gledhill gave a splendid heartfelt appreciation of the fine characteristics of his departed friend, speaking of his medical art, his love for music and all the spiritual and mental beauties of life, and praising him as the model of a Christian gentleman. Rev. Young centered his remarks around the statement that the deceased was "in tune with the infinite." After a few closing remarks by Mr. Nelson, the choir sang "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way." President R. D. Young spoke the benediction and then the coffin was taken to the hearse for the last trip to the cemetery.

A detail of Battery E, commanded by Lieutenant J. Clifford Nelson, stood at attention and presented arms when the pallbearers carried the remains out of the chapel.

The members of the Rebekah lodge took care of the floral tributes.

At the cemetery the Odd Fellows' funeral rites were conducted with Noble Grand Adolph Nielson and Secretary William Johnston in charge. The detail of the battery fired a salute, Dr. Schock having been a Civil War veteran. First Counselor C. W. Powell, Jr., dedicated the grave.

Honorary pallbearers were A. M. Hunter of Antimony, Andrew Jessen, Hans Tuft of Monroe, William Johnston, Martines Christensen and H. S. Ivie. Active pallbearers were J. L. Rasmussen, Ed. Mortensen, Guy Lewis, Cap Nelson, Leo Borg and Adolph Nielson, all brothers of the deceased in Odd Fellowship.

Dr. Shock was born January 31, 1846, in Fork's Township, Pennsylvania, the son of a sturdy Pennsylvania Dutch family, which later moved to Illinois. Dr. Shock enlisted in the Union army in 1862 and was honorably discharged with the rank of sergeant at the close of the Civil war. Later he studied medicine at the Universities of Illinois and Michigan, took several post graduate courses and practiced medicine in Salt Lake City, before purchasing a ranch in Grass valley where he, together with a life long friend, A. M. Hunter, especially cultivated the breeding of high grade horses and cattle. He was also interested in mining and was prominent in exploiting the resources of Silver City. At the time of his death he still held some placer mining claims on the upper Colorado river. Of his family only one sister, Mrs. O. E. Hemmenway of Colorado Springs, Colorado, survives, and besides her five nephews and two nieces living in California and Kansas.
